CRAVING, ADDICTION AND BRAIN SCIENCE: Lessons for Prevention, Treatment and Recovery

SPEAKER: Omar Manejwala, MD

In every community across America people are talking about and sounding the alarm regarding the “opiate epidemic” and the related death toll estimated currently at more than 120 per day. Yet this is not a new concern, we have experienced similar alarms sounded in our past history for alcohol, marijuana, cocaine and other drugs. This presentation is intended to put a face on “America’s Invisible Thief” and move us away from talking about the latest drug use “trends” to what we can do as individuals, families and as a larger community to end the cycle.

Objectives:

- Review the history of substance use in the US and the factors responsible for driving the current climate
- Review the epidemiology of addiction and the crisis with a view to understanding trends and trouble spots
- Examine the impact of addiction on the family and identify a path forward
- Review evidence based treatment and the factors that drive success
- Address specific policy proposals that can support recovery

TRANSFORMING LIVES WITH RECOVERY- INFORMED EDUCATION

SPEAKER: Sarah Nerad, MPA

Collegiate Recovery Programs (CRPs) and Recovery High Schools (RHS) are a growing trend on campuses and in communities all over the country. Almost 200 schools are recognizing the need for and benefits of supporting college students in recovery from drug and alcohol addiction. Learn about the history of these programs, the benefits they provide to students in recovery, how you can connect young people to them, and ways to help start a CRP or RHS in your community.

Objectives:

- Describe what collegiate recovery programs and recovery high schools are and the benefits of them
- Understand the needs and challenges of being a young person in recovery
- How to identify the best CRP for your client
- Utilize the national resources available for CRP and RHS creation and sustainability
